MISCELLANEOUS READING. STRAWBERRY CULTURE.

R J. Pardee says:-"The necessarily very brief notes of the sayings of the Farmers' Club hardly convey a sufficient answer to the very proper inquiry, how strawberries can be cultivated for fitty cents a bushel? I have said this does not include the cost of gather-Class 15, to be drawn in the city of Augusta, ing and selling, and in Western New York, where experiments have been largely tried, good land can be bought for $50 per acre, the interest of which is $3 50. I never purchased, but raised my own plants. I once stimulated a single plant of Barr's New Pine so as to produce me 1,400 good plants for setting out, in less than sixteen months. So, of course, no economical market raiser will expend large sums of money for plants, but raise them from a few pure plants. Again, I would select good land in suitable condition, and rich enough for corn and potatoes. I am opposed to all stimulating animal ma-300 nures for the strawberry, or land over en-125 riched, as some portions of the gardens are, 100 but I have always preferred land in the best possible condition for a crop. Then apply a moderate costing of unfliched ashes, lime 4 Prizes of 300 ap'g to 30,000 are 1,200 and sait, say three bushels of ashes, one of 4 Prizes of 200 apg to 10,000 are 800 lime, and four or six quarts of salt, and, if 500 need be, prepared muck or leaf mould or 400 turf. See that the land selected is neither 300 too wet nor too dry, neither too sandy nor too heavy, too high nor too low. Then plough, subsoil and barrow thoroughly, and in favorable weather set out the plants twelve to sixteen inches apart in rows three feet, so as to let a horse cultivator pass between them. Keep them clean in the usual way and of course they can be cultivated in this manner very nearly as cheap as corn and potatoes. Care must be taken to select a suitable location, and soil in the right condition, well prepared; then set out the plants in such condition and weather as not to be seriously checked in their growth from the transplanting; select the best varieties, and keep each one separated from all other runners; permit no plant nor runner to remain tered by the Commissioners, the Prize being nearer than a foot to every other plant; always keep them clean, and not only uniform large crops may be expected, but superior fruit, and all at a cost of less than fifty cents per bushel for the mere cultivation, as my own and other's observation and experience abundantly attest. The difficulty is, so many do something as directed and neglect others, which prove equally fatal, while many are clogged with old ideas, babits, and customs on this subject, from which they only break away one thing at a time. This will not do. If you mulch your bed with tan, the mulch will keep down the growth of weeds near the plant. I would let ronners grow, and in the Fall take a fine rake and pull up the weak plants of the runners. This is cheaper than not injure the plants. In setting plants, I would use the plants from the first end of the runners, because the roots are stronger than those at the little end of the vine. The Wilson strawberry has been so well tested for four years past that I should be willing to adept it into field culture. The universal do do 10 halt do 40 00 market here is the Crimson cone, which is in favor on account of its ability to bear transportation. The Wilson will, I think, bear transportation equally well.
